Report- Week 4

This week mostly I focused on integrating twitter. I went through all the required documentation to integrate twitter and created an application within my twitter account. I am using "twitter 4j" which is a java library for twitter API for the authentication and posting on twitter. The process is slightly different from the one which I used in LinkedIn. Here users are not redirected but instead returned a PIN key that they have to enter in order to get the final authorization

Problems:

1. It took me some time understand the processing of twitter4j and twitter API.
